

Social Media Policy

RSL has only six official social media sources all of which are secured and controlled by the RSL Marketing Department, currently consisting of David Mather and Naomi Morris.

They consist of official pages on:

Facebook - www.facebook.com/rslawards

LinkedIn - www.linkedin.com/company/rockschool-ltd

Twitter - www.twitter.com/rslawards

Instagram - www.instagram.com/rslawards

All of these channels or pages will be recognisable from the official RSL logo. RSL is not responsible for, or involved in any other pages, channels or accounts listed under an unofficial RSL brand or its sub-brands RockschooL or PAA.

Any content that RSL designates as illegal or inappropriate that is posted or uploaded to any of our social media sites will be immediately removed by our internal moderators and reported to the relevant site management.

Anything RSL designates as abusive which is sent via any official RSL social media will also be removed with immediate effect.

RSL advises anybody visiting or using official RSL social media pages, tags or channels should avoid posting any of their personal data. If they are under 18, RSL also advises them to avoid having any personal data available to view on their own accounts.

RSL will only publish personal data at the express written consent of the person involved (or their parent/guardian in the event of them being under 18), or if it is already in the public domain. Personal data in this instance will be limited to exam results, age, school, and/or town inhabited. RSL will never publish address or contact details of any person other than official RSL staff, and this will always be business contacts only.

RSL takes no responsibility for any content found on any external sites, links or pages including Twitter handles and linked YouTube channels.

Any offensive content that might appear in a recording by RSL for YouTube will be censored on all public channels.

No RSL staff members or examiners will knowingly befriend or follow on any form of social media the following:

- Candidates currently registered for a forthcoming assessment
- Candidates or students under 18
- Candidates currently studying for any qualification under the RSL banner

No discussion should be had on any social media about the assessment of any candidate and any concerns or queries regarding a forthcoming assessment should be sent directly to info@rslawards.com where they can be dealt with in confidence.
